Good Home Record

THIS afternoon we play our ninth home League match of the season, and can look back over the fixtures completed with a measure of satisfaction.

We are naturally pleased with the way things have gone in away matches, but a good home record is equally essential to success, and a haul of 13 points from the eight games played in the League on this ground is more than encouraging after our failures to pick up more than one from the first two home fixtures.

Our one defeat at home was at the hands of Leeds United in August, and since that match we have picked up maximum points from the six home League games played. Moreover, in the course of those six victories, our defence has not conceded a single goal.

The four goals we have given away in home League matches this season were in the two opening games with West Ham United and Leeds.

Comparisons may have only a limited value, but it is worthy of attention that of the first eight home League matches played last season, Spurs had been beaten four times and once held to a draw. And we had conceded 11 goals against only 10 scored.

After 17 League matches last season, Spurs stood 11th on the First Division chart. At the end of the season we occupied the same position. This season we look for a slight change in the trend. We aim at an even higher position than we at present occupy.

NEWCASTLE'S INTENTIONS

In football it is wise never to indulge in self-congratulation. Naturally, we are delighted with our home record over the last three months, but Newcastle United, our welcome visitors today, are here with the intention of upsetting it.

Our victory at Chelsea last Saturday lifted us into second place in the League, but what has happened in past matches means little, apart of course, from the confidence that springs from a run of success.

Each match is a fresh event and a new challenge. Much can depend on an early goal.

Newcastle stand in a much lower position in the League than Spurs, but they already have three away League wins to their credit, and will be out to add to their total of points.

Here is Newcastle's full away record to date with goalscorers:

Stoke City	0-3
Crystal Palace	0-1
West Bromwich Albion,
(Dyson, Wilson own goal)	2-1
Derby County (Dyson,
Young)	2-1
West Ham United
(Robson 2)	2-0
Manchester City (Dyson)	1-1
Wolverhampton W. (Davies,
Holsgrove own goal)	2-3
Everton (Wright own goal)	1-3
Southampton	0-2

Note that three of Newcastle's 10 away goals have been scored by home defenders. We hope a Spurs player's name is not added to the list today!

Manager Bill Nicholson congratulates Martin Chivers on winning the Evening Standard "Footballer of the Month" award.

Manchester United (Davies)	1—0

CUP KNOCK-OUTS

In the Football League Cup Newcastle fell at the first hurdle. They were defeated 2—1 in an away tie with Bristol Rovers.

In the Fairs Cup their knock-out in the second round by Pecs Dozsa of Hungary was on the new penalty-kick system after the two-leg pairing had ended at 2—2. In the first round Newcastle had defeated Inter-Milan on an aggregate score of 3—1.

NEWCASTLE'S SCORERS

Newcastle's goals in the three main competitions this season are as follows:

Football League: Robson and Dyson 3 each; Davies 2; Smith, Foggon, Gibb, McNamee, Hindson and Young 1 each; Wilson (West Bromwich), Holsgrove (Wolves) and Wright (Everton) 1 own goal each.

League Cup: Dyson 1.

Fairs Cup: Davies 4; Moncur 1.

LAST SEASON

Remember the wave of relief we all felt after beating Newcastle here 2—1 in the League last season?

The win was invaluable as our previous three home matches, against Wolverhampton, Sunderland and Manchester City, had all ended in defeat for Spurs.

After a goalless first half, Jimmy Greaves gave Spurs the lead, and later added a second with one of his most spectacular efforts.

Newcastle's goal was scored late in the game by Bryan Robson.

A full page colour photograph of Martin Peters will be featured in the Club Programme for the match with Manchester United a fortnight today.

REFEREE FOR TODAY

The man in charge today is Mr. Gordon Hill of Leicester.

Mr. Hill is, in fact, a Bolton man by birth, who started refereeing in the Bacup League in 1952, and prior to his appointment as a Football League linesman in 1960, he officiated in the Central and North Regional Leagues. It was in 1966 that he became a Football League referee.

Among his more important matches have been the quarter-final of the European Cup between Prague and Real Madrid, and Lazio v. Wolverhampton Wanderers in the Anglo-Italian Tournament earlier this year. He also refereed the F.A. Cup semi-final between Chelsea and Watford, and the F.A. Youth Cup semi-final between Spurs and Bristol City, both on this ground last March.

Mr. Hill, who is married with two sons, is headmaster at a Leicester school, and his main interest is education.

Referee Hill was at one time a player in the Lancashire Amateur League, but the removal of a cartilage put an end to his playing activities. He is a qualified F.A. coach.

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE

1. When did Newcastle last win the F.A. Cup, who were their opponents, and what was the result of the match?
2. A former international forward of Newcastle is now player-manager to a club in the Southern League. Can you name him and his club?
3. Who scored the two goals for Spurs when we beat Chelsea in the F.A. Cup Final of 1967?
4. Newcastle have won the F.A. Cup six times. Has any club a better record?
5. Two seasons ago Newcastle won the Fairs Cup. Which Continental club did they beat in the Final?

The answers will be found on page 14

TODAY'S VISITORS

NEWCASTLE UNITED

THERE may be a new face or two in Newcastle's line-up this afternoon compared with the team that faced us on this ground in the corresponding match last season, but most of the players in the visiting side have appeared here before.

One of the biggest names in the Newcastle side is Wyn Davies, their Welsh International centre-forward. Davies ranks with the most dangerous strikers in First Division football, but Mike England knows as much about his play as anyone.

Wyn Davies

Mike and Wyn are Welsh international team-mates, and have, of course, opposed each other in League football in the past. Both come from North Wales. Davies is a Caernarvon man, who played for Wrexham and Bolton Wanderers before joining Newcastle.

Goalkeeper Iam McFaul is also an international. He is an Ulsterman from Coleraine, who made his name with Linfield in the Irish League. Newcastle signed him from Linfield in November, 1966.

NEWCOMER

Another product of Irish League football may be in Newcastle's line-up today. He is Tommy Cassidy, signed only last month from Glenrath.

Cassidy made his League debut for Newcastle in the No. 8 shirt at Southampton a fortnight ago after playing only two matches in the reserve side.

Another player new to Newcastle since their last visit to this ground is left-winger David Ford. He joined Newcastle from Sheffield Wednesday last December after playing against us here for the Yorkshire club.

Ford, who was born in Sheffield, sustained injuries in a car crash three seasons ago. When Wednesday were beaten by Everton in the 1966 F.A. Cup final, he scored one of their two goals.

Newcastle will have some familiar names in defence today.

Bobby Moncur, Newcastle's captain, is a key figure in their defence. A Perth man, he has been with the Tynesiders since he was a youngster, and is a Scottish international.

Last week he captained Scotland against Denmark in the Nations Cup match at Hampden Park.

FROM BELFAST

Right-back David Craig comes from Belfast, and is an Irish international. He, too, joined Newcastle as a youngster.

Frank Clark, from Highfield in County Durham, was left-back in the Crook Town team that beat Hounslow Town in the Amateur Cup final of 1962.

He signed professional forms for Newcastle in the following November.

Wing-half Tommy Gibb is the former Partick Thistle player. A former Scottish Under-23 player, Gibb left Armadale Thistle for Partick in 1963. In August, 1968, he made the further move to Newcastle.

Centre-half John McNamee also is a Scot. He comes from Lanark, signed for Celtic and later moved to Hibernian. In December, 1966 McNamee was transferred from Hibs to Newcastle, and made his debut for the north-easterners against Spurs on this ground the following day.

DANISH INTERNATIONAL

Ben Arentoft, who has worn the No. 10 shirt for Newcastle on each of their last two visits to this ground, is a Danish international.

He was born in Copenhagen, but established a big reputation in Scottish football with Morton before crossing the border to sign for Newcastle in March, 1969.

Winger Bryan Robson is a lively raider who has played for the England Under-23 team. He was born at Sunderland, spent most of his boyhood at Prudhoe, and has been a professional at St. James's Park since he was 17.

A place may be found for Keith Dyson, the forward who made his League debut for Newcastle two seasons ago. He comes from Consett, and is another of Newcastle's own discoveries.

Midfield man Dave Elliott, who comes from Tantobie in County Durham, joined Newcastle from Sunderland. He made his League debut for Newcastle in season 1966-67.

Newcastle's team in the corresponding match last season was McFaul; Craig, Clark; Gibb, Burton, Moncur; Robson, Smith, Davies, Arentoft and Foggon.

ENGLAND YOUTH

One of the most attractive youth matches of the season will be staged on this ground on Tuesday evening, 15th December, when the England XI will play our own team.

We are proud of the record of our Youth team, and it will be interesting to see how they fare against a team of national strength.

This match is part of England's preparation for the International Youth Tournament to be held in Czechoslovakia in May, 1971, and we hope a big crowd will be here to provide the right atmosphere and encouragement for young players who are expected to be the League stars of the future.

As these notes were of necessity written before Wednesday evening's League Cup-tie with Coventry City, we have been unable to make any reference to that match.

PERSONALITY

Presenting . . .

JIMMY PEARCE

NO SPURS player is more of a local than Jimmy Pearce, who was born here in Tottenham, and attended Rowland Hill (now Somerset) School.

Jimmy enjoyed considerable success as a schoolboy player. He played for Tottenham and Middlesex Boys and made three appearances for England.

His first Schoolboy international was against Wales at Swansea. The others were against Ireland, and Wales a second time.

Not surprisingly, Jimmy was a Spurs supporter from an early age. His favourite spot on the terracing was close to the centre spot, and no Spurs player of that time captured his imagination more than Dave Mackay.

When Jimmy left Rowland Hill he joined us as an apprentice professional. That was in May, 1963, and two years later he signed as a full pro.

The gateway of opportunity opened for Jimmy at the beginning of season 1968-69. Prior to the start of the League campaign we played F.K. Austria in Vienna, and Pearce replaced Jimmy Robertson in our team at half-time.

A GOOD START

Jimmy made a good start. He scored Spurs' second goal, and we were only robbed of victory by a whirlwind finish in which the Austrians scored twice.

The following Saturday we opened the League season at home to Arsenal. For a local boy, reared in an atmosphere of Spurs-Arsenal rivalry, it was an exciting occasion. Jimmy nearly scored halfway through the first half, when his great left-footed shot was turned over the bar by goalkeeper Bob Wilson.

The day did not end well for Spurs. We lost 2-1.

Jimmy and his wife, Carole, who have a year-old daughter, Leigh, live at Ilford. He is in partnership with his brother-in-law in a carpet-fitting business, and in the better weather enjoys sailing on the River Blackwater.

STATISTICS.—Jimmy's total of full League appearances is 60 plus 12 as substitute. Prior to Wednesday's match with Coventry he had also made 13 full and 6 substitute appearances in the F.A., Texaco and League Cups. He has scored 11 League, and prior to Wednesday, 6 Cup goals.

CUP WIN

Millwall Youth 0, Spurs Youth 2

A goal in each half gave Spurs victory in the replayed first round Southern Junior Floodlight Cup-tie against Millwall at the Den on Tuesday evening.

Both goals were the direct result of bad defensive errors. Peter Johnson scored the first in the 10th minute after Millwall's defence had failed to clear a harmless situation, and Mike Flanagan intercepted a muddled goal kick to net our second goal in the 77th minute.

Mike Dillon was ordered off following an incident in Millwall's goalmouth in the 67th minute.

Team: Ward; M. Jackson, Jones; Dillon, Peck, Souness; P. Johnson (sub. G. Plackett), Boughey, Clarke, J. Lewis and M. Flanagan.

Spurs are away to Aldershot in the 2nd round.
